They ran past bustling shops and houses . . .

. . . till they came to the port.
“We’ll have to sneak aboard a boat!” called Sophie.

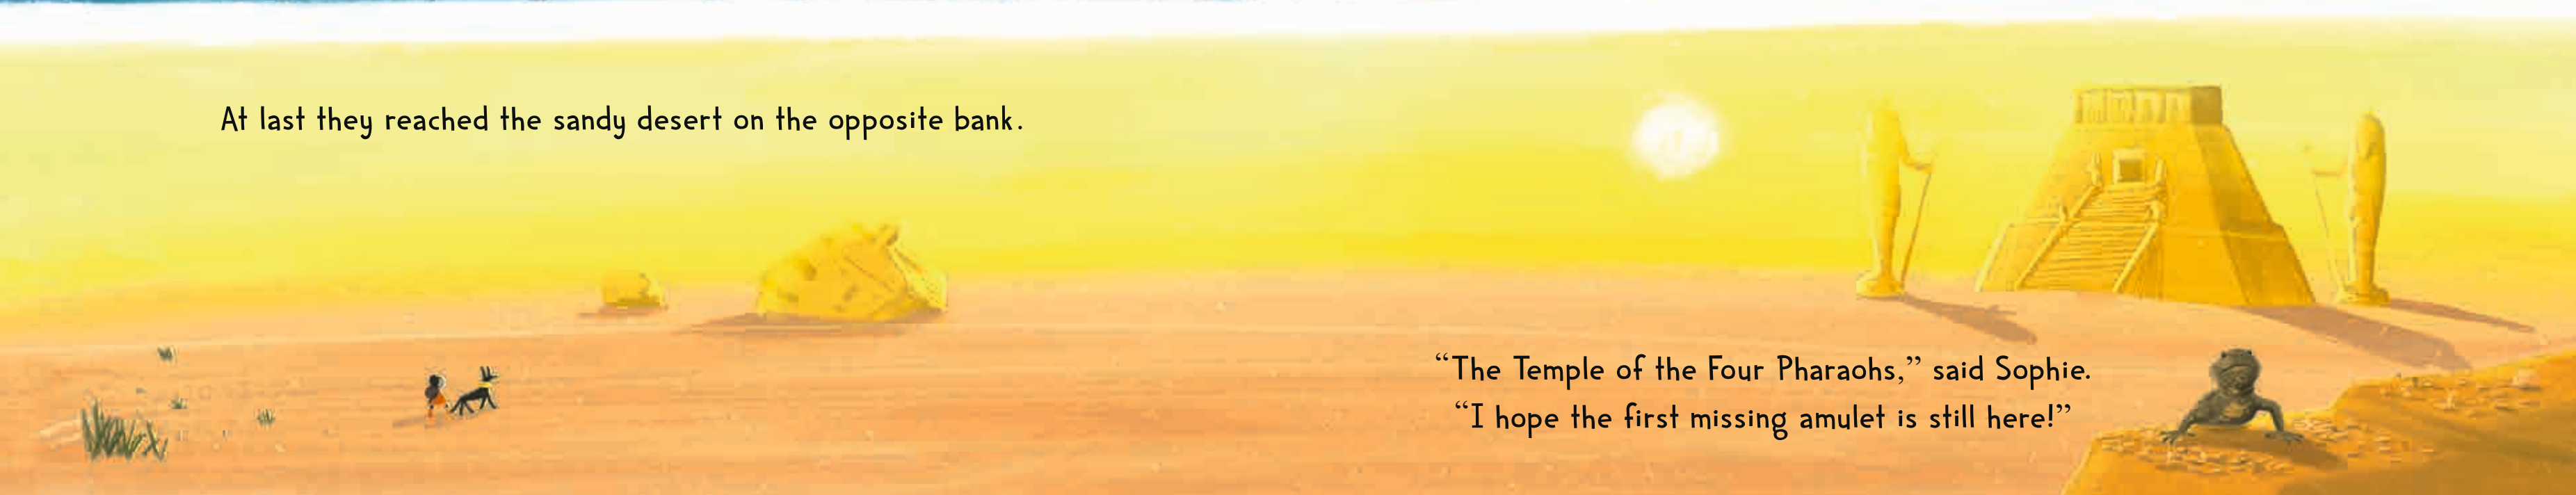

The little boat bobbed across the water.

“Eek!” squeaked Sophie, as Ari saved her from the jaws of an enormous crocodile.

Ari growled. “Anyone who harms the heir of Nebra will have to face me!”

At last they reached the sandy desert on the opposite bank.

“The Temple of the Four Pharaohs,” said Sophie.
“I hope the first missing amulet is still here!”

The friends raced across the desert until they arrived at the Palace of the Murals.

They crept into its dusty interior.

“These murals are so silly,” tutted Ari.
“I’m not sure if they’ll be any help.”

Why are pharaohs boastful?
They sphinx they know best!

Mirror, mirror,
in my hand,
Who’s the fairest
in the land?

I feel a little flat
today!

Snack, sir?

Don’t mind
if I do!

Ooh!
A pretty pyramid!

“Hello,” Sophie called.
“Please can you give me the
hawk’s head amulet?”
But the murals were too busy chatting to hear her.

“Look! There’s a loose tile, and it’s glowing!” said Ari.

“That must be where the
last amulet is,” said Ari.
“To the pyramid!”

Sales Points

- Hidden visual clues and an interactive narrative will instantly immerse readers in the action.
- Fantastically intricate illustrations, packed with look-and-spot details.
- Encourages readers to take their time and change their perspective to solve problems they might face.

About the Author

Ellie has always loved picture books. As a little girl she thought it would be pretty cool to work on them – and even more amazing to write one. After a lot of dithering, cups of tea, and creative support from the fab people in her life she finally managed to do both. Ellie lives in London and her next life goal is to own a cat. A fluffy one.

About the Illustrator

Brendan Kearney lives and works in the South West of England with his family and little dog, Crumble. He has loved drawing since he was a kid and feels very lucky to be able to draw for a living. He particularly enjoys drawing animals (especially sloths). When he isn't drawing, he enjoys playing guitar and exploring the woods and rivers of Dartmoor.
