The illustration depicts a serene night scene. Two brown squirrels are curled up and sleeping in a field of stylized flowers and leaves. The flowers are in shades of purple and pink, with some having dark centers. The leaves are in various shades of green and blue. The background is a deep blue, speckled with white stars and small white flowers. The overall style is whimsical and cozy.

You're my little sleepyhead,
It's time to close
your eyes.

Except right here. I'll keep you warm,
so snuggle up with me.

Mort the Meek and the Perilous Prophecy

Rachel Delahaye
Illustrated by George Ermos

When Brutalia's ever suspicious Queen is forewarned of a new enemy – a nearby island called Bonrock – Mort is worried. As a pacifist, he's a firm believer that strangers are just friends they haven't met yet. Then he and his best friend and fellow pacifist Weed are sent to the island to investigate.

But Bonrock is a warm and welcoming place, with luscious landscapes and tropical waters. Mort's relieved – there's no need to fight! Until they stumble upon something terrifying... Perhaps there really is trouble in paradise?

Pub Date: 5 January 2023 Price: £6.99
ISBN: 9781788955706

Sales Points

Wickedly funny middle grade adventure with heart, from the author of JIM REAPER. A story about how to stand up for yourself when you're different and questioning the world order. Full of imagination and detailed world building, Brutalia is bursting with an eclectic cast of characters and a lovable protagonist in Mort. Perfect for fans of FROSTHEART, Cressida Cowell, Steven Butler and Terry Pratchett. Included in The Guardian round-up: "Crammed with wisecracking corvids and outrageous wordplay, it's engagingly light-hearted, Pratchettesque comic fantasy."

About the Author

After studying linguistics, Rachel began a career in print journalism. She has worked in London, Sydney and Melbourne, and now lives in Bath. While she has vowed never to move again (well, not for a little while), her imagination has refused to settle down, and she's now writing children's fiction, including the hilarious JIM REAPER series. Rachel is married with two children and a dog called Rocket. You can follow her on Twitter at @RachelDelahaye.
