"Where are you going?" Naledi called, before they all followed him into a larger crevasse. They gasped as they saw what Sipho had spotted.

Kayode rubbed his eyes. "Are you seeing what I am seeing?"

"Oh yes," Thabo answered.

Deep underground, the group had found a luxurious hoard of the most exquisite gems Yomi had ever seen in her life. Diamonds, rubies and emeralds were everywhere, with sparkling stones embedded in the cave walls.

"You said these mining tunnels were abandoned, right?" Yomi asked.

"Yes, they were," Naledi answered.

"Do we know why exactly?" Yomi was quickly realizing it might not have been humans who had put those booby traps in place. Looking around, she realized the others had come to the same conclusion. Thabo's face was tight as if trying to hold back his emotions, Sipho started to panic, and Naledi and Kayode exchanged worried glances. Given the gems in front of them, she was starting to get a good idea of who had set the traps...
